

Transparency in Supply Chain Disclosure

Dole Food Company's worldwide team of growers, packers, processors, shippers and employees is committed to consistently providing safe, high-quality fresh fruit, vegetables, and food products, while protecting the communities and environment in which its products are grown and processed. Dole is committed to supplying the consumer and our customers with the finest, high-quality products and to leading the industry in nutrition research and education. Dole supports these goals with a corporate philosophy of adhering to the highest ethical conduct in all its business dealings, treatment of its employees, and social and environmental policies. More information about Dole and our global operations can be found at <http://www.dole.com/AboutDole/world-of-dole>.

Dole's supply chain exists to support bringing our products from the farm to the consumer. Dole's products are primarily grown on Dole owned or managed farms, with some being purchased from long-term partner growers and a smaller amount on the open market as needed.

Dole has a strict policy against the use of slavery and human trafficking that applies throughout its supply chain—both to its worldwide operations and its dealings with suppliers. Dole requires its key suppliers to sign and comply with this policy, contained both in our Code of Conduct and our Supplier Manual. Dole has also placed this obligation in our grower contracts, which require our growers' commitment not to use any kind of slavery or human trafficking (including debt bondage), specifically including labor or services obtained by means of force, threat of force or physical restraint, or by depriving or violating the personal liberty of another by knowingly destroying, concealing, removing, confiscating or retaining possession of any passport, immigration or travel documents. Dole's key suppliers are those that provide goods or services that equal or exceed $1,000,000 annually.

Dole's policy, as stated in our Code of Conduct, includes a blanket prohibition against doing business with any individual or company who is engaged in child labor, slavery or human trafficking. Any violation by a supplier of these restrictions can result in termination of that relationship. Dole's Code of Conduct can be found at <http://www.dole.com/en/AboutDole/CodeofConduct>.

Dole employs a variety of methods to ensure that its supply chain complies with its prohibitions on human trafficking and slavery. For example, our standard grower contracts give Dole the right, whenever it deems necessary, to carry out facility and/or farm inspections, including inspections of the supplier's use of crop protection products and other chemicals, environmental management programs, occupational health and safety programs, food safety programs, and related conditions on its farms and or facilities.

Dole also embraces the International Labor Organization's (ILO) conventions. For example, in accordance with ILO Convention 138 regarding minimum age and ILO Convention 182 on child labor, Dole prohibits child labor. The Company's policy is even stricter for many of the developing countries in which Dole operates—prohibiting any people younger than 18 years of age from being hired or employed in any form. In accordance with ILO Convention 29 regarding forced labor and ILO Convention 105 on the abolition of forced labor, Dole does not engage in or condone forced labor of any kind. This policy is emphasized in Dole's Code of Conduct, grower contracts and Supplier Manual.

Dole participates in independent third party certification systems through Rainforest Alliance or the Fairtrade Labelling Organization International (FLO).

The Rainforest Alliance certification scheme is based on the Sustainable Agricultural Network (SAN). Originally an NGO involved in fighting tropical deforestation, Rainforest Alliance has evolved among others in a widely accepted scheme promoting environmental and social responsibility among farmers. All Dole-owned conventional banana farms are certified to Rainforest Alliance and a growing number of its independent farmers are as well.

The FLO sets worldwide standards and certification requirements for products carrying the FAIRTRADE Mark. Dole and its partners distribute Fairtrade certified products, including bananas (conventional or organic), pineapples and oranges in nine European countries. Dole also distributes Fair Trade certified products in the United States. In addition, many of Dole's Company-owned banana and pineapple plantations in Costa Rica are certified according to the Fair Trade U.S.A. standard.

Dole regularly trains its employees on the requirements of its Code of Conduct, and requires the distribution of the Code to consultants and key suppliers. Employees and Dole's consultants and key suppliers are required to annually acknowledge Dole's Code. In addition, Dole's managers and supervisors must ensure that the Dole Code of Conduct is properly disseminated to all direct reports and that employees, including those responsible for relationships with suppliers, understand the Dole policies relevant to their positions. Failure by an employee to follow the standards set forth in the Code of Conduct may subject that employee to disciplinary action up to and including termination of employment. Any violation of the Dole Code of Conduct or Supplier Manual may result in termination of that relationship.

Dole maintains an ethics reporting hotline, through which Dole employees are encouraged to report suspected violations of Dole's Code of Conduct. This reporting may be done anonymously and the decision to report a suspected Code violation is protected by Dole's zero tolerance policy toward any type of retaliation. Hotline reports are reviewed by Dole's Internal Audit department for corrective action if necessary.

Dole has is committed to the idea that building strong partnerships with trusted suppliers will ensure that we deliver high-quality and safe products that are responsibly produced.

Approved by the Board and signed on its behalf by:

A large, stylized handwritten signature in black ink, written over a horizontal line. The signature is highly cursive and loops around itself, with a prominent vertical stroke in the center.